Thursday, September 17, 2015 | 12:00 PM - 1:30 PM | FIU Modesto A. Maidique Campus | GL 156

For the ESC's first installment of our monthly virtual roundtables series, we are asking a panel of experts to reflect upon some of the most significant differences between the US and European models of higher education. In particular, we will be looking at the question of who pays for students to go to University, and how much it costs both the individual and society.

Our panel of experts will include:

- Professor John Weidman, School of Education, University of Pittsburgh
- Professor Liudvika Leisyte, Center for Higher Education at TU Dortmund, Germany
- Dr. John Douglass, Senior Research Fellow in Public Policy and Higher Education at the University of California at Berkeley
- Goldie Blumenstyk, Senior Writer at The Chronicle of Higher Education

Moderator: Dr. Ron Linden, Director, European Studies Center
