The European and Eurasian Studies Program, in collaboration with the European Student Association, is pleased to premiere a series of European Films during the Fall 2017 semester. The first of these is a French film: “L’Auberge Espagnole.”

Xavier, a French student worried about his career choices, is advised by a family friend that learning Spanish will be his ticket to success. He signs up for the Erasmus Program of the European Community, which arranges student exchanges as a way for young people of the New Europe to get to know one another by living and studying together for a year. The film follows his experience in Spain.
