GUEST SPEAKER

Philippa Greer

Reprieve’s Legal Fellow and Coordinator for the United States

“Reprieve is a British legal action charity that works to promote the rule of law around the world and to secure each person’s right to a fair trial, from death row to Guantanamo Bay. Philippa is Reprieve’s Legal Fellow and Coordinator for the United States; her work involves assisting capital defense teams and European governments to enhance legal and consular assistance to foreign nationals facing the death penalty. Philippa also directs Reprieve’s legal strategy involving death penalty cases in the United States, exploring strategic opportunities for litigation under international law as well as critical forms of intervention to engage governments in the worldwide abolition of the death penalty.

Philippa graduated from the University of Edinburgh, School of Law in 2011 with First Class Honours, where she also gained a Postgraduate Diploma in Professional Legal Practice in 2012. She was awarded a Kennedy Memorial Trust Award in 2013 and attained an LL.M. from Harvard Law School in 2014. Through her work on the European Commission Project, Philippa aims to promote the value and impact of consular assistance in capital cases and to contribute to the raising of minimum standards in capital trials. Her broader goal is to alter the legal and political landscape for abolition of the death penalty via an integrated approach to human rights advocacy which bridges the gap between law and politics.”

ACADEMIC PANELISTS

Professor Megan A. Fairlie

*Associate Professor of Law
FIU College of Law*

B.A., State University of New York at Albany
J.D., Washington and Lee University
LL.M., National University of Ireland, Galway
Ph.D. (Law), National University of Ireland, Galway

Megan Fairlie received her B.A. in English summa cum laude from the University at Albany, where she was inducted to Phi Beta Kappa and was a four year member of the women's varsity swim team. She then earned her J.D. from Washington and Lee University, cum laude. Professor Fairlie's most recent academic achievements stem from her affiliation with the Irish Centre for Human Rights at the National University of Ireland, Galway, where she earned the degree of Ph.D. in International Human Rights Law in June 2007. She also holds an LL.M. in International Peace Support Operations from the same institution, graduating first in her LL.M. concentration, with first class honours, and receiving an award for having earned the highest average among all LL.M. graduates. Professor Fairlie's main research interests lie in the field of international and comparative criminal procedure. In 2005, while pursuing her doctorate, she lectured in law at the University of Ulster in Northern Ireland, where she was a part of the Transitional Justice Institute. She has also taught a number of times on the Irish Centre for Human Rights' Summer School on the International Criminal Court and was a Visiting Professor at Albany Law School (2010-2011). From 2007-2009, Dr. Fairlie was part of an expert group, organized by the Amsterdam Centre for International Law and The Hague Institute for the Internalization of Law, whose focus was on the progressive development of the law of international criminal procedure towards a coherent body of law. In 2011, Professor Fairlie returned to serve as Discussant at the group's concluding conference. Since 2009, Professor Fairlie has sat on the board of Self Help Africa-USA, a non-profit organization committed to empowering communities in rural Africa. Professor Fairlie has published in a variety of peer-reviewed and student edited journals in The United States and abroad. She has also authored a number of book chapters, most frequently as a contributor to a series on the case-law of the United Nations International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda. Licensed to practice law in New York and North Carolina, Dr. Fairlie is a former prosecutor and has served as counsel in both houses of the New York State Legislature. She teaches criminal law, criminal procedure, international criminal law, professional responsibility and seminars on international criminal procedure and the International Criminal Court.
